EGYPTIAN COTTON DOESN'T MENACE SOUTH'S MONOPOLY

Washington, April 5.—Certain shrewd British land speculators have long held out alluring hopes to their fellow countrymen and all others looking out for investments in great possibilities to come out of irrigation of lands in Egypt. They have even made an effort to persuade British cotton manufacturers that through this means they might become independent of American cotton. Huge promises have from time to time been made as to what might be expected from the great artificial reservoir of the Assuan Dam.

No American is better informed on Egyptian affairs, especially with respect to these great engineering projects, than Mr. Cope Whitehouse of New York, who is in Washington looking after concessions he and American asso-would be none for lower Egypt; second, the depopulation from 8,350,000 to 1,450,000 has not only been checked but the sleeping sickness is now devastating regions round about Uganda, from whose surplus population it was believed the desolate areas might once more obtain inhabitants."

Touching any prospective menace to the supremacy of American cotton production, Mr. Whitehouse said:

"Egyptian cotton does not and will not amount to an atom. If there is any possible cause for anxiety it is among those American cotton mill men who contemplate arranging for consumption of cotton from Egypt in expectation, based upon baseless British reports that there is soon to be an enormous increase in the production of Egyptian cotton. It will be some years before the proposed increase in cultivable area in Egypt will be available. In the meantime the demand for finer cotton threads, to be supplied only through the American cotton crop, goes on steadily increasing and bidding fair soon to overtake the supply. One boll weevil in Texas will do more harm to American cotton production than the entire cotton crop of Egypt."

PONTOTOC FARMERS UNION IN QUARTERLY SESSION

The Pontotoc County Farmers Union met in regular quarterly session at the U. S. court room in Ada Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

About forty delegates were in attendance, representing twenty locals. The small attendance is attributable to the bad condition of the weather and roads and to the fact that this is the busy planting time.

These forty, despite the obstacles, are here for a three days' session to transact important business of the organization demanding attention. The proceedings for the most part have been such as should not be made public.

They have dealt largely with the financial affairs of the organization.

It is announced that the Union Bank, the organization of which was given in detail by The News some weeks ago, will open up for business April 15, at Fitzhugh, with A. W. Cope as president and J. W. Hart as cashier.

The officers of the county union are: O. W. Taylor, president; G. W. Black, vice-president; W. C. Jones, conductor; W. O. Allen doorkeeper; E. C. Sullivan, secretary.

The delegates expect their labors to

THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE!

Hereby is announced the Mason Drug Co. a candidate for the Most Popular Drug Store in Pontotoc county, subject to the action and approval of all people who want PURE DRUGS, HONEST PRICES, and a SQUARE DEAL. And this candidate will be an easy winner!

For all the latest political news you must be a regular reader of the Daily News. From now till after election there'll be "something doing" each and every day!

ONE WAY A NEWSPAPER HELPS.

A business man of Silver city, New Mexico, on the look out for a new location, sent for sample copies of The News. The following is an excerpt from a later letter of his:

"Sample copies of your Weekly and Evening News (sent by request) reached me some days ago.

"Thanks for same.

"My object in sending for them was to ascertain what kind of place Ada is. If the city is as live and hustling as the "News" it certainly is a fine place."

Then the writer proceeds to enquire further about the town and its resources. The foregoing excerpt indicates one of the many ways a live paper may benefit a town, and of necessity, a paper is largely what the people make it through their patronage. The more advertisers and the more subscribers The News gets, the better paper of this country are going to get.

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION

Another cycle in our municipal history begins this week with the installation of a new corps of city officers. Ada being overwhelmingly Democratic, it has never had other than Democratic officers. And be it said to the party's credit, the city administrations have been notably clean. Remarkably so when compared with the experience of many another new western town.

It is reasonable to suppose the incoming officers will exercise as much care and as much conscience in handling the city's affairs as has been exercised by previous administrations. Starting safely in the path of progress six years ago, it has been kept steadfastly in that path all the time.

The people will want an economical government, but not to the extent of retarding civic advancement. A great work confronts the incoming administration. Ada has grown to a big, solid town, and is now upon the threshold of genuine cityhood. During the coming year it should secure many of the substantial indicia of city life.

While protecting the people against all extravagances, the new officers will be looked to largely to pilot Ada many lengths in its path of progress. Theirs is the opportunity to be to a great extent the builders of Ada, the Greater.

For the first time in three years Purcell elected a Democratic mayor. Welcome to the fold! All honor to Purcell!

LABORING MAN'S CONSTITUTION.

Oklahoma's constitution was framed by one hundred intelligent Democrats. Thirty of them were either farmers or else were identified with other classes of labor, and the influence of those thirty was strong in the making-up of that document. That document is the best guarantee of the people's rights ever submitted for adoption in any state. And yet the Republican leaders are trying to ridicule it, and threaten to make organized opposition to its adoption by the people. What do you suppose will become of the Republican party in the new state if it should be so foolish as to fly in the face of the constitution and statehood?

Ada is glad to have the delegates of the Pontotoc county Farmers Union again here in quarterly session. They are always more than welcome in Ada.

In the Laundry.

Now is the time to buy a bath tub. Call and see them at E. P. Meigs. 13-6d

Central's Capital Stock Increased.

Guthrie, Ok., April 5.—The Oklahoma Central Railway Company, building from Lehigh to Chickasha, one hundred and fifty miles, increased its capital stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 for the purpose of pushing the construction from Purcell, the present western terminus, to Chickasha during the summer months. A portion of the expenditures include also a big bridge over the South Canadian River between Purcell, I.T., and Lexington, Ok. The stockholders signing the increase are Dorset Carter, president; J. F. Sharp, T. C. Woods, J. S. Keefe, H. Wellenberger, W. G. Walling, G. M. Roundtree, J. H. Johnson and M. L. Brittain.

Purcell, I. T., April 5.—The Oklahoma Central Railway Company, with headquarters here, has amended its charter by increasing the capital stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. Its plans contemplate building a steel wagon bridge over the South Canadian River between Purcell and Lexington, in addition to the extension of the road south from Lehigh and west from Chickasha, the present terminus of the road.

MONUMENT TO SEQUOYAH.

Plan to Honor the Famous Inventor of Cherokee Alphabet.

Muldrow, I. T., April 5.—An enthusiastic meeting was held at this place Wednesday to organize the Sequoyah Monument association, the object being to erect a monument to the memory of Sequoyah, the inventor of the Cherokee alphabet and the greatest Indian genius that ever lived.

W. O. Benton, a Cherokee, and the present mayor of the town of Muldrow, was elected president of the association and Prof. F. Campbell of Muldrow, secretary.

The monument is to be a shaft of the finest marble, quarried from the marble quarries at Marble City, near which Sequoyah spent a great deal of his time. Sequoyah's old home is on Skin Bayou, not far from Muldrow, and the ruins of his old house are still standing. It is there that the monument may be built. The old stone fireplace before which Sequoyah sat many a night as he worked over his alphabet is still standing.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

WILLIAMS CONSENTS TO RUN FOR SUPREME BENCH

A Democrat reporter saw Honorable R. L. Williams today, who has just returned from Guthrie, where he, with others, was engaged in representing the convention and also the Supreme Election Board in the Grader County and Woods County injunction suits, and when asked in regard to the gubernatorial race, stated, that at one time he intended to enter the race, and had so announced personally and by letter to many of his friends; that his friends here at Durant had so announced to the public last year at a mass meeting; that soon after the Enabling Act was passed he had many solicitations from all over the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and at that time he intended to yield to these solicitations and make his announcement at the proper time; that at the time he qualified as a delegate to the constitutional convention he was of the same opinion, but that the onerous duties of that convention so completely engrossed his time that he did not have the opportunity to give any attention whatever to any proposed candidacy. That he became convinced that if whilst a delegate to that convention he attempted to maintain a campaign bureau that it would seriously embarrass his work in that convention, which he would not permit and that as it was, he thought his work was embarrassed some from the fact that he was a tentative candidate; that the jealous rivalry occasioned by the clashing ambitions of men, even though his candidacy was in a tentative way, operated to embarrass his work somewhat in that convention. That in connection with the fact of the way the campaigns are being launched for governor and United States Senators for the proposed state, that no man unless he is a rich man, able to make a considerable outlay of money in maintaining headquarters and bearing the expenses of such a campaign, can afford to enter the race with any assurance of success, and not being a rich man, and not being able to finance such a campaign, during the month of January he made up his mind that he would not become a candidate for governor, and he communicated this determination to some close friends; that by many of his friends he was besought to reconsider and change his purpose, but that the more he thought about it the more he realized he had reached the right conclusion, and that the only purpose he had now was in seeing a good man, a loyal Democrat and a friend of the people, and one that could carry the Democratic banner to success, and successfully launch a glorious state administration for the proposed state, was his main purpose. That he was not allied with the fortunes of any candidate or any number of candidates, and that he had not attempted to control his friends in the least as to whom they should support for governor, and had not attempted to influence them. He stated further, that whilst a member of the constitutional convention, and after the railroad and public service corporation report had been adopted by the committee of the whole he had been besought by many men, both inside the convention and outside, to make the race for corporation commissioner, it being stated to him that on account of his familiarity with the provisions relating to railroads and public service corporations that he could eminently fill the position, and he said whilst he appreciated the compliment that such men paid him, that that position, on account of the great detail work in the making of freight rates, was neither in line with his taste nor training, and for that reason he declined. That also, he had been solicited by a great number of men to make the race for attorney general, but as it would necessitate a state wide campaign for the nomination, and on account of the short time in which to make the race, and the amount of money it would be necessary to expend in making the race under present conditions was so great, and many other reasons, he did not feel justifiable in yielding to the solicitations to make the race for that place.

He stated also, that a considerable number of the delegates in the convention and also persons outside who were greatly desirous of the reform measures proposed in said constitution and also our railroad and public service corporation provisions, and the other provisions looking to the protection of the people being properly construed by the court of last resort, had solicited him to become a candidate for the supreme bench of the state; that that was a place that did not require a campaign over the entire state for the nomination, and that the position was in line with his training and his taste, and that personally he would appreciate that exalted place more than any other state office, including the governor of the state, and for that reason in connection with many others, he had made up his mine to become a candidate for one of the justices of the supreme court.—Bryan County Democrat.

GREAT NAMES IN DIRECTORY.

Many Namesakes of Famous Lights of Literature.

A study of the new London Directory, which this year scales 13 pounds, is extremely interesting. In the case of literature, we are accustomed to regard the names of great authors as ending with them; yet the greatest of English writers has several namesakes scattered over London. William Shakespeare, professor of singing, almost alone carries on the artistic tradition of the name; but there is something quite Elizabethan in the address "Green Ladies," appertaining to Henry Shakespeare, a grocer. John Buayan is another grocer, in what Londoners will describe as "the" Edgware road. William Blake is a beer retailer, a craft that is far removed from "songs of innocence." Chaucer is a name that seems to have absolutely dropped out. Milton, of course, is fairly common, although the only John Miltons are a ship chandler and a choristologist, neither of them poetic avocations. Keats occurs a few times, but there is no John Keats. Curiously enough, there is not a single Keble, but there is one Defoe. The name of Bronte is owned very appropriately by a woman, but she makes clothes instead of novels.

STARS ON COINS AND FLAG.

Little Heraldry Lore Shown in the Five and Six Points.

The stars on the great seal and the seal of the president of the United States are five-pointed, while on the seal of the house of representatives they are six-pointed. The 13 stars on the obverse of the present half and quarter dollar are five-pointed. The reverse of the present half and quarter dollar is a copy of the great seal, except that the clouds are omitted. It is evident that heraldry has not taken a very strong hold in these matters in the United States, therefore it is not in the power of anyone to say without a doubt why the difference in the stars on the flag and the coins. So far as is known, with the exception of the reverse of the present half and quarter dollar, the stars on American coins are copied from the colonial coins, which were, no doubt, made after the manner of English heraldry, while the flag was made up after the design of Washington's coat-of-arms, containing three five-pointed stars.

Led to Humorous Error.

Capt. Amundsen, having lost several dogs in his expedition to the Arctic regions, told some of the Netchillie tribe that he would purchase one from them. The suggestion caused consternation and was promptly refused. An explanation was demanded. The man applied to return next day with a chubby, laughing boy on his back. "Such we do not sell," he said. Amundsen was astonished. "You wished to purchase one," said the man, seeing Amundsen's perplexity. Finally it was discovered that the Greenlandic term for "dog" was equivalent to "child" in the Netchillie language.

Money in Bogus Pennies.

Strangely enough, the most profitable coins to counterfeit are pennies, because for an expenditure of 18 cents 100 of them can be made, which leaves a profit of 82 cents on the dollar. The chief difficulty is in getting them into circulation. It also takes expert workmanship to make these pennies, because they must be made with die. The best counterfeitors pay most of their attention to the making of quarters, half dollars and dollars. With silver at 60 cents an ounce a counterfeiter can make five quarters from every ounce, quarters that ring true and have every appearance of the real thing.—New York World.

Mixed His Quaker.

Former Representative Charles T. Cherry was telling some men at Springfield the other day of a baggage man in an Illinois town to which a number of influential Quakers were coming. The baggage man conceived the idea that if the visitors thought he, too, was a Quaker business might be helped thereby. Consequently, upon the arrival of the delegation at the station the leader was greeted by the baggage man, who solicitously asked: "Has thou the checks for thou baggage?" And yet he wondered why the Quakers smiled.

Wine Without Grapes.

The Bavarian winemaker who fabricated 55,000 gallons of wine in one year by means of chemicals, without a drop of grape juice, is one of many similarly engaged who deserve the punishment of imprisonment and fine which he alone gets. Within seven years 300 tons of glycerin have been used by this dealer, it seems, making wine, besides citric and tartaric acids. No wonder that, with such a beverage, the bibulous Bavarian gets extremely "tight," almost to the point of explosion.

THE CAT THAT REASONED.

Family Pet Made the Best of Unfamiliar Situation.

"Talking about the ability of animals to reason," said a citizen, "you ought to see my wife's cat. He is a spoiled beast, and in the evening when the family is sitting about the lamp no objection is made to his jumping up on the table and walking around to be potted. But one thing he has learned by dint of several good whippings is that he must never get up on the table when it is spread for a meal. Well, one night recently when we came home from the theater we decided to have a little supper, and my wife spread a cloth over the end of the table. The cat just then entered the room. Walking to the table he was about to jump up when he caught sight of the white cloth over one end. It was plain that he was puzzled. First he went to the end that had no cloth, hesitated, and then returned to look at the end that contained the cloth. My wife and I stood still to watch him, and we had no doubt that he was assuring himself that the cloth was really there. At length he jumped up on a chair by the table so as to survey its top. The half of the table at which he sat was free from the cloth, and finally he very cautiously climbed up on the table and slowly crossing over to the half which contained the cloth, sat down at the very edge."

IS A RELIC OF THE PAST.

Blind Veteran of the Palmy Days of the Circus.

It is not often that one may have his dinner cooked by a woman who can at the same time give reminiscences of the stage dating back for half a century. She who possesses this remarkable memory is the proprietor of an inn of odd construction which is not far from Greenwood Lake, in New Jersey. She has been identified with practically every phase, not only of the stage, but of the circus. She is now blind, but her mind is so filled with images of the past that she is never depressed. She remembers P. T. Barnum, James A. Bailey and all the old-time kings of the tented field, for in her younger days she was a performer in the ring. The palmy days of minstrelsy she can talk about for the hour, recalling anecdotes of Wambold and Backus and old Billy Emerson. Then by a quick transition she will go to the drama and talk entertainingly of Florence and Jefferson and the elder Sothern. In the meantime she is busy about the details of the dinner and is carrying on the complicated operations as easily as though her sight was as keen and strong as it was in the days of her triumphs of ring and stage.

Painting Under Difficulties.

A. A. Boussoff is a Russian painter of Arctic scenes. To produce his sketches he was compelled to make tollsome and hazardous journeys during which he could only use charcoal and pastel. It was not possible, save in the spring, to use oil colors, and even then it was hard to mix them, the paints being frozen. "Some of my sketches," he says, "I painted in the open air when it was bitterly cold. I had to put on fur gloves to hold the brush and work with rapid and energetic strokes. There were moments when my hands were frozen and refused service, my brush splitting with the cold. Yet I continued, having the ardent desire to fix on the canvas all those fantastic phenomena of the far north, so full of fascinating charm."

Advice to the Discontented.

Whenever you are tempted to growl against fate or complain of your lot just look around and find out what others are bearing. You will find many men with more brains and better education worse off than you are. Then compare your lot with that of such men and if you don't quit complaining and go in for rejoicing there's something radically wrong with your mental balance. When an obstacle gets in your way don't waste time and energy in complaining about it. If you can't push it out of your path get over it, under it or around it any way you can—and leave the obstacle behind you. The second obstacle will not appear half as big if you get past the first.—Spare Moments.

Easy.

"But do you think," said Manager Flisco, "that you can stand the onerous duties of the villain's role? You must remember that you have to be kicked from a third-story window, that in the fire scene the whiskers are burnt off your face, and in the final climax you are first beaten to a pulp and then thrown into a caldron of boiling oil." The applicant smiled. "All that will be child's play to me, sir," he replied. "I once paraded with the Orangemen on St. Patrick's day."

Why She Dined with Him.

"No, you are right," asserted the impudent girl. "I had met him only half a dozen times when I went to dinner with him. I sometimes do that. Why? Oh, because it's so lonely to dine opposite strange faces. I had almost rather go hungry than sit all by myself at some little cafe table, or, say, opposite some strange and unattractive face. Then, besides," she added plaintively, "it is so expensive."

Not the Same.

"That theatrical doctor is something like an epicure." "In what way?" "He knows how to cure thams."

Here's What One Dealer Said:

"It was quite a venture for me to run a daily ad. I thought I could not afford it, although the first ad was small. So I watched it closely, and there were times during the first month when I had my doubts, but after that I HAD NONE—I KNEW IT PAID—and I attribute my large and prosperous trade today to PERSISTENT ADVERTISING—keeping my store and its goods CONSTANTLY before the public eye."

HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS.

Much Ingenuity Called For in Compiling Bible Into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilborn, the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master, "The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them." He may preach and explain, but the people must be able to search for themselves. Ultimately he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this, the Bible Society, working in Natal, South Africa, began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order, and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for "God," and, of course, none for such abstract terms as "faith," "holiness," "worship," "conscience," "honesty," etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created, and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed a complete Zulu Bible in one volume, which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal, and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitzgerald in the Circle Magazine.

HINT FOR BOOK LENDERS.

Woman Has Ingenious Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

A book borrower's album is the device which a woman who has a fine library has employed in order that she may keep track of her books and that her friends may not be delinquent in returning them. She delighted in lending her books, but was far from pleased in punching her friends up for their return. Now when a friend asks the loan of a book she acquiesces readily enough, but requests the borrower to write in the album his or her name and the date on which the book is borrowed. On returning it the borrower is asked to comment on the book and initial it.

This album always is kept in a conspicuous place in the drawing room, where visitors are likely to pick it up and glance it through, learning who is not prompt in returning books. The result is that this woman now has her books returned promptly, as the borrowers know they will be convicted in the album if they are delinquent. They take kindly to the plan, the lender does not have to prod them for the return of the books, and she has an album which is valuable to her as containing the comments of her friends on the treasures in her library.

Too Much for One Volume.

Scribbler—My new novel is entitled "What I Told My Wife." Ruyter—Why don't you call it "What I Didn't Tell My Wife?" Scribbler—Publishers limited me to one volume.

So Was He.

"It turned out just as I feared. My uncle didn't leave me any of his real estate in his will." "Then your fears were groundless, weren't they?"—Kan-Da City Times.

POINT HAD BEEN PROVED.

No Need for Young Man to Carry Experiment Further.

A young man who had inherited a large fortune from a rich but very economical relative decided to live on scale commensurate with his greatly increased income, and was making arrangements to build a fine mansion, buy an automobile and invest in other expensive luxuries, when an elderly friend who had always been one of his advisers undertook to remonstrate with him. "What's this I hear about your squandering the money your uncle left you, Harry?" said the elderly friend. "I am not going to squander it," he answered, "but I'm going to get some good out of it." "It's enough to make him turn over in his grave. Didn't your uncle prove in his own case that a man could live on a personal expenditure of less than $1,000 a year?" "Yes." "Well?" "Well," he proved it so thoroughly that I accept it as demonstrated. What is the use of continuing the experiment?"—Youth's Companion.

Laughter the Best Tonic.

Laughter is a good, healthy, muscle-making, lung-developing exercise, and it is as good for girls as boys. And humor can be cultivated in a girl's mind without any abatement of the dignity and modesty and charm of her womanhood. Not the unpleasing and constant frivolity evidenced in "smart" speech or quickness of repartee, but the humor that looks at the world with a twinkle in the eye and sees its absurdities, its smallness and its fun, says a writer. It should be part of every woman's mental equipment, for women are called upon to bear so many of life's small worries as well as its greater ones. The bringing up of children, the care of servants, and the many social duties that become a burden, are all made easy and possible to put up with by the woman with an unfailing sense of humor and of the bright side of life.

The Change in Surgeons.

"The surgeon of the past was a huge, coarse, red-faced brute, a very terror," said a surgeon of the present. "And no wonder. What type of man but the brute type could cut off legs or saw through the skull while the patient, perfectly conscious, howled and wept? In the past surgery was barbed to gentle and refined men. Whatever their interest in anatomy, in medicine, they shunned surgery. They could not endure to operate upon a conscious subject. The advent of anaesthesia caused the advent of new men into surgery. Men of delicacy, of sympathy, of imagination—a higher type—took the profession up. That is why surgery is continually advancing now, whereas in the past it stood dead still."

What Ailed Him.

The village philosopher looked unhappy. "What's the trouble?" asked the village cut-up. "Indigestion," said the philosopher. "I suppose it's the mince pie I indulged in last night." "Mince pie nothing! I know what's the matter with you and I'm not sorry it hurts, either. You're too full of old saws, you are, and it's no wonder they have turned on you at last."

No Installments.

Creditor—"Won't you pay me on the installment plan?" Debtor (haughtily)—"No. I always owe cash."

EGYPTIAN COTTON DOESN'T MENACE SOUTH'S MONOPOLY

Washington, April 5.—Certain shrewd British land speculators have long held out alluring hopes to their fellow countrymen and all others looking out for investments in great possibilities to come out of irrigation of lands in Egypt. They have even made an effort to persuade British cotton manufacturers that through this means they might become independent of American cotton. Huge promises have from time to time been made as to what might be expected from the great artificial reservoir of the Aswan Dam.

No American is better informed on Egyptian affairs, especially with respect to these great engineering projects, than Mr. Cope Whitehouse of New York, who is in Washington looking after concessions he and American asso-cates obtained in Egypt before the British obtained in Egypt their sole title to the country—the title of force. Mr. Whitehouse denies the British stories about the prospective increase of cotton production in Egypt, certainly looking upon it as absurd that through this source British independence of the American cotton crop can ever be reached.

"While the cotton crop in Egypt for the current year is a little better than last," said Mr. Whitehouse today, "it has never yet reached the amount that was produced before the Aswan Dam was begun. The fears entertained in regard to cotton from equatorial Africa are equally groundless. The reason therefor is twofold: first, if the water was used in equatorial Africa, there would be none for lower Egypt; second, the depopulation from 8,350,000 to 1,450,000 has not only been checked but the sleeping sickness is now devastating regions round about Uganda, from whose surplus population it was believed the desolate areas might once more obtain inhabitants."

Touching any prospective menace to the supremacy of American cotton production, Mr. Whitehouse said:

"Egyptian cotton does not and will not amount to an atom. If there is any possible cause for anxiety it is among those American cotton mill men who contemplate arranging for consumption of cotton from Egypt in expectation, based upon baseless British reports that there is soon to be an enormous increase in the production of Egyptian cotton. It will be some years before the proposed increase in cultivable area in Egypt will be available. In the meantime the demand for finer cotton threads, to be supplied only through the American cotton crop, goes on steadily increasing and bidding fair soon to overtake the supply. One boll weevil in Texas will do more harm to American cotton production than the entire cotton crop of Egypt."

PONTOTOC FARMERS UNION IN QUARTERLY SESSION

The Pontotoc County Farmers Union met in regular quarterly session at the U. S. court room in Ada Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

About forty delegates were in attendance, representing twenty locals. The small attendance is attributable to the bad condition of the weather and roads and to the fact that this is the busy planting time.

These forty, despite the obstacles, are here for a three days' session to transact important business of the organization demanding attention. The proceedings for the most part have been such as should not be made public.

They have dealt largely with the financial affairs of the organization.

It is announced that the Union Bank, the organization of which was given in detail by The News some weeks ago, will open up for business April 15, at Fitzhugh, with A. W. Cope as president and J. W. Hart as cashier.

The officers of the county union are: O. W. Taylor, president; G. W. Black, vice-president; W. C. Jones, conductor; W. O. Allendoorfer; E. C. Sullivan, secretary.

THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE!

Hereby is announced the Mason Drug Co a candidate for the Most Popular Drug Store in Pontotoc county, subject to the action and approval of all people who want PURE DRUGS, HONEST PRICES, and a SQUARE DEAL. And this candidate will be an easy winner!

For all the latest political news you must be a regular reader of the Daily News. From now till after election there'll be "something doing" each and every day!

ONE WAY A NEWSPAPER HELPS.
A business man of Silver city, New Mexico, on the look out for a new location, sent for sample copies of The News. The following is an excerpt from a later letter of his:
"Sample copies of your Weekly and Evening News (sent by request) reached me some days ago.
"Thanks for same.
"My object in sending for them was to ascertain what kind of place Ada is if the city is as live and hustling as the "News" it certainly is a fine place."

Then the writer proceeds to enquire further about the town and its resources. The foregoing excerpt indicates one of the many ways a live paper may benefit a town, and of necessity, a paper is largely what the people make it through their patronage. The more advertisers and the more subscribers the News gets the better paper of this country are going to get.

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION

Another cycle in our municipal history begins this week with the installation of a new corps of city officers. Ada being overwhelmingly Democratic, it has never had other than Democratic officers. And be it said to the party's credit, the city administrations have been notably clean. Remarkably so when compared with the experience of many another new western town.

It is reasonable to suppose the incoming officers will exercise as much care and as much conscience in handling the city's affairs as has been exercised by previous administrations. Starting safely in the path of progress six years ago, it has been kept steadfastly in that path all the time.

The people will want an economical government, but not to the extent of retarding civic advancement. A great work confronts the incoming administration. Ada has grown to a big solid town, and is now upon the threshold of genuine cityhood. During the coming year it should secure many of the substantial indicia of city life. While protecting the people against all extravagances the new officers will be looked to largely to pilot Ada many lengths in its path of progress. There is the opportunity to be a great extent the builders of Ada, the Greater

For the first time in three years Purcell elected a Democratic mayor. Welcome to the fold! All honor to Purcell!

LABORING MAN'S CONSTITUTION.

Oklahoma's constitution was framed by one hundred intelligent Democrats. Thirty of them were either farmers or else were identified with other classes of labor, and the influence of those thirty was strong in the making up of that document. That document is the best guarantee of the people's rights ever submitted for adoption in any state. And yet the Republican leaders are trying to ridicule it and threaten to make organized opposition to its adoption by the people. What do you suppose will become of the Republican party in the new state if it should be so foolhardy as to fly in the face of the constitution and statehood?

Ada is glad to have the delegates of the Pontotoc county Farmers Union again here in quarterly session. They are always more than welcome in Ada.

Central's Capital Stock Increased.
Guthrie Ok., April 5.—The Oklahoma Central Railway Company, building from Lehigh to Chickasha, one hundred and fifty miles, increased its capital stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 for the purpose of pushing the construction from Purcell, the present western terminus, to Chickasha during the summer months. A portion of the expenditures include also a big bridge over the South Canadian River between Purcell, I. T., and Lexington, Ok. The stockholders signing the increase are Dorsey Carter, president, J. F. Sharp, T. C. Woods, J. S. Keele, H. Wellenberger, W. G. Walling, G. M. Roundtree, J. H. Johnson and M. L. Brittain.

Purcell, I. T., April 5.—The Oklahoma Central Railway Company, with headquarters here, has amended its charter by increasing the capital stock from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. Its plans contemplate building a steel wagon bridge over the South Canadian River between Purcell and Lexington, in addition to the extension of the road south from Lehigh and west from Chickasha, the present terminus of the road.

MONUMENT TO SEQUOYAH.

Plan to Honor the Famous Inventor of Cherokee Alphabet.

Muldrow, I. T., April 5.—An enthusiastic meeting was held at this place Wednesday to organize the Sequoyah Monument association the object being to erect a monument to the memory of Sequoyah, the inventor of the Cherokee alphabet and the greatest Indian genius that ever lived.

W. O. Benton a Cherokee, and the present mayor of the town of Muldrow, was elected president of the association and Prof. F. Campbell of Muldrow, secretary.

The monument is to be a shaft of the finest marble, quarried from the marble quarries at Marble City near which Sequoyah spent a great deal of his time. Sequoyah's old home is on Skin Bayou, not far from Muldrow and the ruins of his old house are still standing. It is there that the monument may be built. The old stone fireplace before which Sequoyah sat many a night as he worked over his alphabet is still standing.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts whether large or small are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products such as cotton grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

The People Who Put the Price Down

WILLIAMS CONSENTS TO RUN FOR SUPREME BENCH

A Democrat reporter saw Honorable R. L. Williams today, who has just returned from Guthrie, where he, with others, was engaged in representing the convention and also the Supreme Election Board in the Gruber County and Woods County injunction suits, and when asked in regard to the gubernatorial race, stated, that at one time he intended to enter the race, and had so announced personally and by letter to many of his friends, that his friends here at Duran had so announced to the public last year at a mass meeting; that soon after the Enabling Act was passed he had many solicitations from all over the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and at that time he intended to yield to these solicitations and make his announcement at the proper time, that at the time he qualified as a delegate to the constitutional convention he was of the same opinion, but that the onerous duties of that convention so completely engrossed his time that he did not have the opportunity to give any attention whatever to any proposed candidacy. That he became convinced that if whilst a delegate to that convention he attempted to maintain a campaign bureau that it would seriously embarrass his work in that convention, which he would not permit, and that as it was, he thought his work was embarrassed some from the fact that he was a tentative candidate, that the jealous rivalry occasioned by the clashing ambitions of men, even though his candidacy was in a tentative way, operated to embarrass his work somewhat in that convention. That in connection with the fact of the way the campaigns are being launched for governor and United States Senators for the proposed state, that no man unless he is a rich man, able to make a considerable outlay of money in maintaining headquarters and bearing the expenses of such a campaign, can afford to enter the race with any assurance of success, and not being rich man, and not being able to finance such a campaign, during the month of January he made up his mind that he would not become a candidate for governor and he communicated this determination to some close friends that by many of his friends he was besought to reconsider and change his purpose, but that the more he thought about it the more he realized he had reached the right conclusion, and that the only purpose he had now was in seeing a good man, a loyal Democrat and a friend of the people, and one that could carry the Democratic banner to success and successfully launch a glorious state administration for the proposed state, was his main purpose. That he was not allied with the fortunes of any candidate or any number of candidates, and that he had not attempted to control his friends in the least as to whom they should support for governor, and had not attempted to influence them. He stated further, that whilst a member of the constitutional convention, and after the railroad and public service corporation report had been adopted by the committee of the whole he had been besought by many men, both inside the convention and outside to make the race for corporation commissioner, it being stated to him that on account of his familiarity with the provisions relating to railroads and public service corporations that he could eminently fill the position, and he said whilst he appreciated the compliment that such men paid him, that that position, on account of the great detail work in the making of freight rates, was neither in line with his taste nor training, and for that reason he declined. That also, he had been solicited by a great number of men to make the race for attorney general, but as it would necessitate a state wide campaign for the nomination, and on account of the short time in which to make the race, and the amount of money it would be necessary to expend in making the race under present conditions was so great, and many other reasons, he did not feel justifiable in yielding to the solicitations to make the race for that place.

He stated also that a considerable number of the delegates in the convention and also persons outside who were greatly disirous of the reform measures proposed in said constitution and also our railroad and public service corporation provisions, and the other provisions looking to the protection of the people being privately construed by the court of law in the state, to become a candidate for the supreme bench of the state that was the place that did not require a campaign over the entire state for their nomination, and that the position was in line with his training and his taste, and that personally he would appreciate that exalted place more than any other state office, including the governor of the state, and for that reason in connection with many others, he had made up his mine to become a candidate for one of the justices of the supreme court.—Bryan County Democrat

Many Namesakes of Famous Lights of Literature.

A study of the new London Directory, which this year scales 13 pounds, is extremely interesting. In the case of literature we are accustomed to regard the names of great authors as ending with them, yet the greatest of English writers has several namesakes scattered over London. William Shakespeare, professor of singing, almost alone carries on the artistic tradition of the name, but there is something quite Elizabethan in the address "Green Lanes," appertaining to Henry Shakespeare, a grocer. John Bunyan is another grocer in what Londoners will describe as the Edgware road. William Blake is a beer retailer a craft that is far removed from so gaudy an innocence. Chaucer is a name that seems to have absolutely dropped out. Milton of course is common, although the only John Milton is a ship chandler and a chandelier dealer, neither of them poetic avocations. Keats occurs a few times, but there is no John Keats. Collier, enough, there is not a single haberdash, but there is one Deroe. The name of Dr. is owned very appropriately by a woman, but she makes clothes instead of boy's

STARS ON COINS AND FLAG

Little Heraldry Lore Shown in the Five and Six Points

The stars on the great seal and the seal of the president of the United States are five-pointed while on the seal of the house of representatives they are six-pointed. The 13 stars on the obverse of the present half and quarter dollar are five-pointed. The reverse of the present half and quarter dollar is a copy of the great seal except that the clouds are omitted. It is evident that heraldry has not taken a very strong hold in these mites in the United States therefore it is not in the power of anyone to say without a doubt why the difference in the stars on the flag and the coins. So far as is known with the exception of the reverse of the present half and quarter dollar the stars on American coins are copied from the colonial coins which were no doubt made after the manner of English heraldry while the flag was made up after the design of Washington's coat-of-arms containing three five-pointed stars.

Led to Humorous Error

Capt. Amundsen having lost several dogs in his expedition to the Arctic regions told some of the Nechillie tribe that he would purchase one from them. The suggestion caused consternation and was promptly refused. An explanation was demanded. The man applied to returned next day with a chubby laughing boy on his back. "Such we do not sell," he said. Amundsen was astonished. You wished to purchase one, said the man seeing Amundsen's perplexity. Finally it was discovered that the Greenlandic term for dog was equivalent to "child" in the Nechillie language.

Money in Bogus Pennies

Strangely enough the most profitable coins to counterfeit are pennies because for an expenditure of 18 cents 100 of them can be made, which leaves a profit of 82 cents on the dollar. The chief difficulty is in getting them into circulation. It also takes expert workmanship to make these pennies because they must be made with a die. The best counterfeiter pay most of their attention to the making of quarters, half dollars and dollars. With silver at 50 cents an ounce a counterfeiter can make five quarters from every ounce quarters that ring true and have every appearance of the real thing.—New York World

Mixed His Quaker

Former Representative Charles T. Cherry was telling some men at Springfield the other day of a baggage man in an Illinois town to which a number of influential Quakers were coming. The baggage man conceived the idea that if the visitors thought he was a Quaker business might be helped thereby. Consequently, at the arrival of the delegation at the station the leader was greeted by the baggage man who soliloquized asking him the checks for the baggage? And yet he wondered why the Quakers smiled.

Wine Without Grapes

The Bavarian winemaker who fabricated 55,000 gallons of wine in one year by means of chemicals without a drop of grape juice is one of many similarly engaged who deserve the punishment of imprisonment and fine which he alone gets. Within seven and 300 tons of glycerin have been used by this dealer it seems making wine besides citric and tartaric acids. No wonder that with such a beverage he bibulous Bavarian gets extremely tight, almost to the point of explosion.

THE CAT THAT REASONED.

Family Pet Made the Best of Unfamiliar Situation.

"Talking about the ability of animals to reason," said a citizen, "you ought to see my wife's cat. He is a spoiled beast, and in the evening when the family is sitting about the lamp no objection is made to his jumping up on the table and walking around to be potted. But one thing he has learned by dint of several good whippings is that he must never get up on the table when it is spread for a meal. Well one night recently when we came home from the theater we decided to have a little supper, and my wife spread a cloth over the end of the table. The cat just then entered the room. Walking to the table he was about to jump up when he caught sight of the white cloth over one end. It was plain that he was puzzled. First he went to the end that had no cloth hesitated, and then returned to look at the end that contained the cloth. My wife and I stood still to watch him, and we had no doubt that he was assuring himself that the cloth was really there. At length he jumped up on a chair by the table so as to survey its top. The half of the table at which he sat was free from the cloth, and finally he very cautiously climbed up on the table and slowly crossing over to the half which contained the cloth, sat down at the very edge."

IS A RELIC OF THE PAST.

Blind Veteran of the Palmy Days of the Circus.

It is not often that one may have his dinner cooked by a woman who can at the same time give reminiscences of the stage dating back for half a century. She who possesses this remarkable memory is the proprietor of an inn of odd construction which is not far from Greenwood Lake in New Jersey. She has been identified with practically every phase not only of the stage but of the circus. She is now blind but her mind is so filled with images of the past that she is never depressed. She remembers P. T. Barnum, James A. Bailey and all the old time kings of the tented field for in her younger days she was a performer in the ring. The palmy days of minstrelsy she can talk about for the hour recalling anecdotes of Wambold and Dickus and old Billy Emerson. Then by a quick transition the will go to the drama and talk entertainingly of Florence and Jefferson and the elder Sothern. In the meantime she is busy about the details of the dinner and is carrying on the complicated operations as easily as though her sight was as keen and strong as it was in the days of her triumphs of ring and stage.

Painting Under Difficulties.

A Boussoff is a Russian painter of Arctic scenes. To produce his sketches he was compelled to make sledge and hazardous journeys during which he could only use char coal and pastel. It was not possible save in the spring to use oil colors and even then it was hard to mix them the paints being frozen. Some of my sketches," he says, "I painted in the open air when it was bitterly cold. I had to put on fur gloves to hold the brush and work with rapid and energetic strokes. There were moments when my hands were frozen and refused service my brush splitting with the cold. Yet I continued having the ardent desire to fix on the canvas all those fantastic phenomena of the far north so full of fascinating charm.

Advice to the Discontented.

Whenever you are tempted to growl against fate or complain of your lot just look around and find out what other are bearing. You will find many men with more brains and better education worse off than you are. Then compare your lot with that of such men and if you don't quit complaining and go in for rejoicing there's something radically wrong with your mental balance. When an obstacle gets in your way don't waste time and energy in complaining about it. If you can't push it out of your path get over it, under it or around it any way you can—and leave the obstacle behind you. The second obstacle will not appear half as big if you get past the first—Spokane Moments.

Easy.

"But do you think," said Manager Finco, "that you can stand the onerous duties of the villain's role?" You must remember that you have to be kicked from a third story window that in the fire scene the whiskers are burnt off your face and in the final climax you are first beaten to a pulp and then thrown into a cauldron of boiling oil. The applicant smiled. All that will be child's play to me sir he replied. I once paraded with the Orangemen on St. Patrick's day.

Why She Dined with Him

No you are right, asserted the impudent girl. I had met him only half a dozen times when I went to dinner with him. I sometimes do that. Why? Oh because it's so lonely to dine opposite strange faces. I had almost rather go hungry than sit all by myself at some little cafe table or, say opposite some strange and unbeautiful face. Then besides, she added plaintively, "it is so expensive."

Not the Same.

That theatrical doctor is something like an epicure. "In what way?" "He knows how to cure hams."

Here's What One Dealer Said:

"It was quite a venture for me to run a daily ad. I thought I could not afford it, although the first ad was small. So I watched it closely, and there were times during the first month when I had my doubts, but after that I HAD NONE—I KNEW IT PAID—and I attribute my large and prosperous trade today to PERSISTENT ADVERTISING—keeping my store and its goods CONSTANTLY before the public eye."

HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS

Much Ingenuity Called For in Compiling Bible Into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilborn, the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master. The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them. He may preach and explain but the people must be able to search for themselves. Until he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this the Bible Society working in Natal South Africa began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for God and of course, none for such abstract terms as "faith," "holiness," "worship," "conscience," "honesty," etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed a complete Zulu Bible in one volume which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitzgerald in the Circle Magazine

HINT FOR BOOK LENDERS.

Woman Has Ingenious Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

A book borrower's album is the device which a woman has a fine library has employed in order that she may keep track of her books and that her friends may not be delinquent in returning them. She delighted in lending her books, but was far from pleased in punching her friends up for their return. Now when a friend asks the loan of a book she excuses readily enough, but requests the borrower to write in the album his or her name and the date on which the book is borrowed. On returning it the borrower is asked to comment on the book and initial it.

This album always is kept in a conspicuous place in the drawing room where visitors are likely to pick it up and glance it through learning who is not prompt in returning books. The result is that this woman now has her books returned promptly as the borrowers know they will be convicted in the album if they are delinquent. They take kindly to the plan the lender does not have to prod them for the return of the books and she has an album which is valuable to her as containing the comments of her friends on the treasures in her library.

Too Much for One Volume.

Scribbler—My new novel is entitled "What I Told My Wife." Ruyter—Why don't you call it "What I Didn't Tell My Wife?" Scribbler—Publishers limited me to one volume.

POINT HAD BEEN PROVED.

No Need for Young Man to Carry Experiment Further.

A young man who had inherited a large fortune from a rich but very economical relative decided to live on scale commensurate with his greatly increased income and was making arrangements to build a fine mansion, buy an automobile and invest in other expensive luxuries when an elderly friend who had always been one of his advisers undertook to remonstrate with him. What's this I hear about your squandering the money your uncle left you Harry" said the elderly friend. "I am not going to squander it," he answered, "but I am going to get some good out of it." "It's enough to make him turn over in his grave. Didn't your uncle prove in his own case that a man could live on a personal expenditure of less than $1,000 a year?" "Yes, well," "Well," he proved it so thoroughly that I accept it as demonstrated. What is the use of my continuing the experiment?"—Youth's Companion

Eclipsed.

The stranger from the east was surprised. "Why," he exclaimed as he stepped from the train in the South Dakota settlement, "the Indians around here look as calm and peaceful as school children on a picnic. I thought they considered themselves bad?" "Well, I'll tell you, pard," drawled Amber Pete, "they used to consider themselves bad but since they have had a peek at some of the paleface folks in the divorce colony they have taken a back seat."

Cat Fixes Right Time.

A woman received a telephone call one morning last week from a woman friend, asking her the time of day. The friend telephoned back it was 10 a.m., whereas the other explained that her clocks were all at 9:30, which she knew was wrong, as her pet cat had just washed its face, which it did every morning precisely at ten. Hereafter the woman proposes to regulate her clocks by the cat's ablutions.

HEIGHT OF THE CLOUDS.

Measurement Shows They Are from One to Six Miles Away

When the illuminating tests of the new high pressure fountain in the Schwarzenbergplatz, Vienna, were made a remarkable cone of light was observed appearing as though projected by a searchlight save the London Post. When this beam of light fell on a cloud an exceedingly bright spot appeared in the heavens. Dr. Rhoden assistant at the Vienna observatory, observing the angle which the bright spot made with the horizon had the happy thought of using it to determine the height of the clouds.

A simple geometrical calculation permits of this and from a number of observations cloud heights were deduced ranging from 1,650 to 10,078 meters or from one to six miles approximately. A peculiar fact was that sometimes during weather that was apparently perfectly clear a bright spot would appear in the projection of the beam of light, showing the presence of a stratum of fine vapor ordinarily visible with difficulty or entirely invisible. On one occasion this vapor stratum proved to be more than a mile and a half miles high.

What Alled Him.

The village philosopher looked up happy. "What's the trouble?" asked the philosopher. "I suppose it's the minor ple I indulged in last night." "Mince pie nothing." I know what's the matter with you and I'm not sorry they have turned on you at last."

EGYPTIAN COTTON DOESN'T MENACE SOUTH'S MONOPOLY

Washington, April 5.—Certain shrewd British land speculators have long held out alluring hopes to their fellow countrymen and all others looking out for investments in great possibilities to come out of irrigation of lands in Egypt. They have even made an effort to persuade British cotton manufacturers that through this means they might become independent of American cotton. Huge promises have from time to time been made as to what might be expected from the great artificial reservoir of the Asuan Dam.

No American is better informed on Egyptian affairs, especially with respect to these great engineering projects, than Mr. Cope Whitehouse of New York, who is in Washington looking after concessions he and American asso-would be none for lower Egypt; second, the depopulation from 8,350,000 to 1,450,000 has not only been checked but the sleeping sickness is now devastating regions round about Uganda, from whose surplus population it was believed the desolate areas might once more obtain inhabitants."

Touching any prospective menace to the supremacy of American cotton production, Mr. Whitehouse said:

"Egyptian cotton does not and will not amount to an atom. If there is any possible cause for anxiety it is among those American cotton mill men who contemplate arranging for consumption of cotton from Egypt in expectation, based upon baseless British reports that there is soon to be an enormous increase in the production of Egyptian cotton. It will be some years before the proposed increase in cultivable area in Egypt will be available. In the meantime the demand for finer cotton threads, to be supplied only through the American cotton crop, goes on steadily increasing and bidding fair soon to overtake the supply. One boll weevil in Texas will do more harm to American cotton production than the entire cotton crop of Egypt."

PONTOTOC FARMERS UNION IN QUARTERLY SESSION

The Pontotoc County Farmers Union met in regular quarterly session at the U. S. court room in Ada Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

About forty delegates were in attendance, representing twenty locals. The small attendance is attributable to the bad condition of the weather and roads and to the fact that this is the busy planting time.

These forty, despite the obstacles, are here for a three days' session to transact important business of the organization demanding attention. The proceedings for the most part have been such as should not be made public.

They have dealt largely with the financial affairs of the organization.

It is announced that the Union Bank, the organization of which was given in detail by The News some weeks ago, will open up for business April 15, at Fitzhugh, with A. W. Cope as president and J. W. Hart as cashier.

The officers of the county union are: O. W. Taylor, president; G. W. Black, vice-president; W. C. Jones, conductor; W. O. Allendoorfer; E. C. Sullivan, secretary.

WILLIAMS CONSENTS TO RUN FOR SUPREME BENCH

A Democrat reporter saw Honorable R. L. Williams today, who has just returned from Guthrie, where he, with others, was engaged in representing the convention and also the Supreme Election Board in the Grader County and Woods County injunction suits, and when asked in regard to the gubernatorial race, stated, that at one time he intended to enter the race, and had so announced personally and by letter to many of his friends, that his friends here at Durant had so announced to the public last year at a mass meeting; that soon after the Enabling Act was passed he had many solicitations from all over the Indian Territory and Oklahoma, and at that time he intended to yield to these solicitations and make his announcement at the proper time, that at the time he qualified as a delegate to the constitutional convention he was of the same opinion, but that the onerous duties of that convention so completely engrossed his time that he did not have the opportunity to give any attention whatever to any proposed candidacy. That he became convinced that if whilst a delegate to that convention he attempted to maintain a campaign bureau that it would seriously embarrass his work in that convention, which he would not permit and that as it was, he thought his work was embarrassed some from the fact that he was a tentative candidate, that the jealous rivalry occasioned by the clashing ambitions of men, even though his candidacy was in a tentative way, operated to embarrass his work somewhat in that convention. That in connection with the fact of the way the campaigns are being launched for governor and United States Senators for the proposed state, that no man unless he is a rich man, able to make a considerable outlay of money in maintaining headquarters and bearing the expenses of such a campaign, can afford to enter the race with any assurance of success, and not being a rich man, and not being able to finance such a campaign, during the month of January he made up his mind that he would not become a candidate for governor and he communicated this determination to some close friends that by many of his friends he was besought to reconsider and change his purpose, but that the more he thought about it the more he realized he had reached the right conclusion and that the only purpose he had now was in seeing a good man, a loyal Democrat and a friend of the people and one that could carry the Democratic banner to success and successfully launch a glorious state administration for the proposed state, was his main purpose. That he was not allied with the fortunes of any candidate or any number of candidates and that he had not attempted to control his friends in the least as to whom they should support for governor, and had not attempted to influence them. He stated further, that whilst a member of the constitutional convention, and after the railroad and public service corporation report had been adopted by the committee of the whole he had been besought by many men, both inside the convention and outside to make the race for corporation commissioner, it being stated to him that on account of his familiarity with the provisions relating to railroads and public service corporations that he could eminently fill the position, and he said whilst he appreciated the compliment that such men paid him, that that position, on account of the great detail work in the making of freight rates, was neither in line with his taste nor training, and for that reason he declined. That also, he had been solicited by a great number of men to make the race for attorney general, but as it would necessitate a state wide campaign for the nomination, and on account of the short time in which to make the race, and the amount of money it would be necessary to expend in making the race under present conditions was so great, and many other reasons, he did not feel justifiable in yielding to the solicitations to make the race for that place.

He stated also that a considerable number of the delegates in the convention and also persons outside who were greatly dis-satisfied with the reform measures proposed in said constitution and also our railroad and public service corporation provisions and the other provisions looking to the protection of the people being properly entrenched by the court of last resort, he reluctantly became a candidate for the supreme bench of the state, that that was place that did not require a campaign over the entire state for the nomination, and that the position was in line with his training and his taste, and that personally he would appreciate that exalted place more than any other state office, including the governor of the state, and for that reason in connection with many others, he had made up his mind to become a candidate for one of the justices of the supreme court. —Bryan County Democrat

Many Namesakes of Famous Lights of Literature.

A study of the new London Directory, which this year scales 13 pounds, is extremely interesting. In the case of literature we are accustomed to regard the names of great authors as ending with them, yet the greatest of English writers has several namesakes scattered over London. William Shakespeare, professor of singing, al most alone carries on the artistic tradition of the name, but there is something quite Elizabethan in the address "Green Lanes," appertaining to Henry Shakespeare a grocer. John Bunyan is another grocer in what Londoners will describe as the Edgware road. William Blake is a beer retailer or a craft that is far removed from so & of innocence. Chaucer is a man that seems to have absolutely died out. Milton of course is a common name although the only John Milton is a ship chandler and a chariot driver. Neither of them poetic avocations heeds occurs a few times, but there is no John Keats. C. I. Lewis' niche there is not a single haberdashery, but there is one Deafie. The name of Mr. Llewellyn very appropriately by a woman but she makes clothes instead of novels.

STARS ON COINS AND FLAG

Little Heraldry Lore Shown in the Five and Six Points

The stars on the great seal and the seal of the president of the United States are five-pointed, while on the seal of the house of representatives they are six-pointed. The 13 stars on the obverse of the present half and quarter dollar are five-pointed. The reverse of the present half and quarter dollar is a copy of the great seal except that the clouds are omitted. It is evident that heraldry has not taken a very strong hold in these minutes in the United States, therefore it is not in the power of anyone to say without a doubt why the difference in the stars on the flag and the coins. So far as is known with the exception of the reverse of the present half and quarter dollar, the stars on American coins are copied from the colonial coins which were no doubt made after the manner of English heraldry, but the flag was made up after the design of Washington's coat-of-arms containing three five-pointed stars.

Led to Humorous Error

Capt. Amundsen having lost several dogs in his expedition to the Arctic regions told some of the Netchillie tribe that he would purchase one from them. The suggestion caused consternation and was promptly refused. An explanation was demanded. The man applied to return next day with a chubby, laughing boy on his back. Such we do not sell, he said. Amundsen was astonished. You wished to purchase one, said the man seeing Amundsen's perplexity. Finally it was discovered that the Greenlandic term for dog was equivalent to child in the Netchillie language.

Money in Bogus Pennies.

Strangely enough the most profitable coins to counterfeit are pennies because for an expenditure of 18 cents 100 of them can be made, which leaves a profit of 82 cents on the dollar. The chief difficulty is in getting them into circulation. It also takes expert workmanship to make these pennies because they must be made with a die. The best counterfeiters pay most of their attention to the making of quarters, half dollars and dollars. With silver at 60 cents an ounce a counterfeiter can make five quarters from every ounce quarters that ring true and have every appearance of the real thing.—New York World

Mixed His Quaker.

Former Representative Charles T. Cherry was telling some men at Springfield the other day of a bag man in an Illinois town to which a number of influential Quakers were coming. The bagman man conceivably he idea that if the visitors thought he too was a Quaker business might helped thereby. Consequently upon the arrival of the delegation at the station the leader was greeted by the bagman who solicitously asked him then the checks for them balance? And yet he wondered why the bagman smiled.

Wine Without Grapes.

The Bavarian winemaker who fabricated 55,000 gallons of wine in one year by means of chemicals without a drop of grape juice is one of many similarly engaged who deserve the punishment of imprisonment and fine which he alone gets. Within seven years 300 tons of glycerin have been used by this dealer. It seems making wine besides citric and tartaric acids. No wonder that with such a beverage the bibulous Bavarian gets extremely tight, almost to the point of explosion.

Not the Same.

THE CAT THAT REASONED.

Family Pet Made the Best of Unfamiliar Situation.

"Talking about the ability of animals to reason," said a citizen, "you ought to see my wife's cat. He is a spoiled beast, and in the evening when the family is sitting about the lamp no objection is made to his jumping up on the table and walking around to be petted. But one thing he has learned by dint of several good whippings is that he must never get up on the table when it is spread for a meal. Well one night recently when we came home from the theater we decided to have a little supper, and my wife spread a cloth over the end of the table. The cat just then entered the room. Walking to the table he was about to jump up when he caught sight of the white cloth over one end. It was plain that he was puzzled. First he went to the end that had no cloth hesitated, and then returned to look at the end that contained the cloth. My wife and I stood still to watch him, and we had no doubt that he was assuring himself that the cloth was really there. At length he jumped up on a chair by the table so as to survey its top. The half of the table at which he sat was free from the cloth and finally he very cautiously climbed up on the table and slowly crossing over to the half which contained the cloth, sat down at the very edge."

IS A RELIC OF THE PAST.

Blind Veteran of the Palmy Days of the Circus.

It is not often that one may have his dinner cooked by a woman who can at the same time give reminiscences of the stage dating back for half a century. She who possesses this remarkable memory is the proprietor of an inn of odd construction which is not far from Greenwood Lake in New Jersey. She has been identified with practically every phase not only of the stage but of the circus. She is now blind but her mind is so filled with images of the past that she is never depressed. She remembers P. T. Barnum James A. Bailey and all the old time kings of the tented field for in her younger days she was a performer in the ring. The palmy days of minstrelsy she can talk about for the hour recalling anecdotes of Wambold and Pickens and old Bill Emerson. Then by a quick transition she will go to the drama and talk entertainingly of Florence and Jeffer son and the elder Sothern. In the meantime she is busy about the details of the dinner and is carrying on the complicated operations as easily as though her sight was as keen and strong as it was in the days of her triumphs of ring and stage.

Painting Under Difficulties

A Bousoff is a Russian painter of Arctic scenes. To produce his sketches he was compelled to make toilome and hazardous journeys during which he could only use charcoal and pastel. It was not possible save in the spring to use oil colors and even then it was hard to mix them the paints being frozen. Some of my sketches he says I painted in the open air when it was bitterly cold. I had to put on fur gloves to hold the brush and work with rapid and energetic strokes. There were moments when my hands were frozen and refused service my brush splitting with the cold. Yet I continued having the ardent desire to fix on the canvas all those fantastic phenomena of the far north so full of fascinating charm.

Advice to the Discontented.

Whenever you are tempted to growl against fate or complain of your lot just look around and find out what other are bearing. You will find many men with more brains and better education worse off than you are. Then compare your lot with that of such men and if you don't quit complaining and go in for rejoicing there's something radically wrong with your mental balance. When an obstacle gets in your way don't waste time and energy in complaining about it. If you can't push it out of your path get over it under it or around it any way you can—and leave the obstacle behind you. The second obstacle will not appear half as big if you get past the first—Spoke Moments

"But do you think ' said Manager Flacco that you can stand the other duties of the villain's role? You must remember that you have to be kicked from a third story window that in the fire scene the whiskers are burnt off your face and in the final climax you are first beaten to a pulp and then thrown into a cauldron of boiling oil. The applicant smiled. All that will be child's play to me sir he replied. I once paraded with the Orangemen on St. Patrick's day."

Why She Dined with Him

No you are right asserted the impudent girl. I had not met him only half a dozen times when I went to dinner with him. I sometimes do that Why? Oh because it's so lonely to dine opposite strange faces I had almost rather go hungry than sit all by myself at some little cafe table or say opposite some strange and unbeautiful face. Then besides, she added plaintively, "it is so expensive."

Not the Same.

That theatrical doctor is something like an epicure "In what way?" "He knows how to cure bams."

Here's What One Dealer Said:

"It was quite a venture for me to run a daily ad. I thought I could not afford it, although the first ad was small. So I watched it closely, and there were times during the first month when I had my doubts, but after that I HAD NONE—I KNEW IT PAID—and I attribute my large and prosperous trade today to PERSISTENT ADVERTISING—keeping my store and its goods CONSTANTLY before the public eye."

Housewives will be interested in being told about the New Spring Goods arriving at your store. They will be interested in reading that your prices are the lowest. Make your ads a personal talk with the ladies, the real buyers in the homes, and your advertising will bring hundreds of buyers to your store. HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS

Much Ingenuity Called For in Compiling Bible Into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilborn the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master. The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them. He may preach and explain but the people must be able to search for themselves. Ultimately he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this the Bible Society working in Natal South Africa began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for God and of course none for such abstract terms as faith, holiness, worship, conscience, honesty, etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed complete Zulu Bible in one volume which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitzgerald in the Circle Magazine

Woman Has Ingenious Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

A book borrower's album is the device which a woman who has a fine library has employed in order that she may keep track of her books and that her friends may not be delinquent in returning them. She delighted in lending her books, but was far from pleased in punching her friends' names into the album. She knew her clocks were all at 80, which she knew was wrong, as her pet cat had just washed its face, which it did every morning precisely at ten. Hereafter the woman proposes to regulate her clocks by the cat's ablations.

Spare Money Hypothecated.

"Madam, your husband said if I would call here to-day there'd be an old suit of his clothes I could have." "He ain't going to have no old clothes I'm going to get a new bonnet."

This album always is kept in a conspicuous place in the drawing room where visitors are likely to pick it up and glance it through learning who is not prompt in returning books. The result is that this woman now has her books returned promptly as the borrowers know they will be convicted in the album if they are delinquent. They take kindly to the plan the lender does not have to prod them for the return of the books and she has an album which is valuable to her as containing the comments of her friends on the treasures in her library.

HEIGHT OF THE CLOUDS.

Measurement Shows They Are from One to Six Miles Away

When the illuminating tests of the new high pressure fountain in the Schwarzenbergplatz, Vienna, were made a remarkable cone of light was observed appearing as though projected by a searchlight says the London Post. When this beam of light fell on a cloud an exceedingly bright spot appeared in the heavens. Dr. Rhoden, assistant at the Vienna observatory, observing the angle which the bright spot made with the horizon had the happy thought of using it to determine the height of the clouds. A simple geometrical calculation per unit of this and from a number of observations cloud heights were deduced ranging from 1,600 to 10,070 meters or from one to six miles approximately. A peculiar fact was that sometimes during weather that was apparently perfectly clear a bright spot would appear in the projection of the beam of light, showing the presence of a stratum of fine vapor ordinarily visible with difficulty or entirely invisible. On one occasion this vapor was proved to be more than one and a half miles high.

So Was He.

POINT HAD BEEN PROVED.

No Need for Young Men to Carry Experiment Further.

A young man who had inherited a large fortune from a rich but very economical relative decided to live on a scale commensurate with his greatly increased income and was making arrangements to build a fine mansion buy an automobile and invest in other expensive luxuries when an elderly friend who had always been one of his advisers undertook to remonstrate with him. What's this I hear about your squandering the money your uncle left you Harry? said the elder friend. I am not going to squander, he answered, but I'm going to get some good out of it. It's enough to make him turn over in his grave. Didn't your uncle prove in his own case that a man could live on a personal expenditure of less than $1,000 a year? Yes. Well? Well, he proved it so thoroughly that I accept it as demonstrated. What is the use of my continuing the experiment? Youth's Companion

Eclipsed.

The stranger from the east was surprised. Why? he exclaimed as he stepped from the train in the South Dakota settlement. The Indians around here look as calm and peaceful as school children on a picnic. I thought they considered themselves bad? Well, I'll tell you, pard'ner, drawled Amber Pete, they used to consider themselves bad but since they have had a peek at some of the paleface folks in the divorce colony they have taken a back seat."

Laughter the Best Tonic.

Laughter is a good healthy muscle-making lung developing exercise, and it is as good for girls as boys. And humor can be cultivated in a girl's mind without any abatement of the dignity and modesty and charm of her womanhood. Not the unpleasing and constant frivolity evidenced in "smart" speech or quickness of repartee, but the humor that looks at the world with a twinkle in the eye and sees its absurdities, its smallness and its fun, says a writer. It should be part of every woman's mental equipment, for women are called upon to bear so many of life's small worries as well as its greater ones. The bringing up of children, the care of servants, and the many social duties that become a burden, are all made easy and possible to put up with by the woman with an unfailing sense of humor and of the bright side of life.

The Change in Surgery.

"The surgeon of the past was a huge, coarse, red-faced brute, a very terror," said a surgeon of the present. And no wonder. What type of man but the brute type could cut off legs or saw through the skull while the patient perfectly conscious, howled and wept? In the past surgery was barred to gentle and refined men. Whatever their interest in anatomy in medicine, they shunned surgery. They could not endure to operate upon a conscious subject. The advent of anesthetics caused the advent of new men into surgery. Men of delicacy of sympathy, of imagination—a higher type—took the profession up. That is why surgery is continually advancing now, whereas in the past it stood still."

What Allied Him.

The village philosopher looked up happy. "What's the trouble?" asked the philosopher. I suppose it's the mince pie I indulged in last night." "Mince pie nothing! I know what's the matter with you and I'm not sorry it hurts either. You're too full of old saws, you are and it's no wonder they have turned on you at last."

No Installments.

Creditor—"Ways you pay us on the installment plan?" Debtor—"Debtors—(laughing) No, I always owe cash."
